20,000 SEE OPENING OF PENDROY'S

Guests From Many Points Attend Reception at Big Store

CROWDS ON WALKS

Merchants Have Biggest Night's Business in History of City

The opening of Pendroy's, marked by a swirl of artistic tints, reception flowers, daylight lighting and music, drew to the new building of the city's first big store not less than 20,000 guests, from all the city, Pasadena, Eagle Rock, Burbank, Tujunga, and Los Angeles, not to mention La Crescenta, Montrose and the Woodlands.

Such a gathering of people sprayed the building with humanity until it reached the point of saturation early in the evening. More came, and the incoming and outgoing visitors filled the neighborhood of Brand boulevard and Harvard street until there was scarcely sidewalk room.

From the moving picture houses to the great demonstration of the Newton company, whose headquarters are next to the new store, the people moved in buying mood until they had staged a business night for the merchants of Brand boulevard such as they have never known.

At the moving picture shows, people stood three abreast waiting, while the capacity audiences were streaming out from the first shows.

A survey of the entire store would include a window display equal to anything Los Angeles could produce, both in quality and novelty of goods and in their artistic draping.

The inside of the store showed broad aisles for comfortable buying. And behind the counters were an array of eager, clever young people who watched the incoming of their future patron-friends with delighted eyes.

The crowd swamped the elevator and then climbed the stairs and proceeded through the whole building, received on each floor by a special committee.

Everywhere visitors met friends who had come to the opening, and groups of old acquaintances formed throughout the reception.

So far as Glendale was affected, the opening showed that one big store has a vital force in a business center, in its drawing power, from which the merchants of other goods in the vicinity secure benefits as they match the standard of their big brother in trade.

WOULD RECOGNIZE SOVIET RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Recognition of soviet Russia by the United States is asked in a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Borah, Idaho.

Are You a Force Being Felt in Your Community?

Are you a driving force in the business of this world's affairs? In The Listening Post this evening James W. Foley with characteristic philosophy analyzes nails and hammers likening them unto men and women. The dream is the nail and the hammer is the force which is necessary to make of the dream a reality, Mr. Foley declares.

Whether a man even though having departed this life shall continue to dominate the lives of those he leaves, is most interestingly discussed by Henry James this evening in his comment on the matter of a man making his last will and testament. In his comment on the day's news, Mr. James talks about many things of current interest, one of the poignant paragraphs dealing with a man hailed into the local courts on a bootlegging charge.

Crime prevention, the right and wrong way, is taken up in Dr. Frank Crane's thoughtful way this evening. Della Stewart queries this evening, "Why be out of date," in even the slightest thing, but then you must read the "Just Between Ourselves," column to get the real gist of the thing.

Besides this there is the eastern point of view, John Pilgrim's daily conversation about the people whom we all know and the editorial columns. In fact, there is an interesting time awaiting you if you'll but turn to the editorial page of the paper this evening.

MRS. J. R. RANKIN PASSES AWAY AT HER HOME

Active Methodist Worker, She Is Survived by Her Husband

Martha Rodgers Rankin, wife of the Rev. Dr. J. R. Rankin, passed away Sunday afternoon, May 14, at the family residence, 444 West Lexington drive. Mrs. Rankin, although failing in health for more than a year, was able to be about the home until just a few weeks prior to her passing. She was born at Portsmouth, O., December 29, 1847, but when quite young moved with her parents to Brady's Bend, Pa., where she was reared to young womanhood. She was married to Josiah Reed Rankin on August 25, 1869, nearly 53 years ago. Five children were born of this union, two sons and three daughters. Besides her husband she is survived by three children(David M. Rankin of Long Beach, Sallie Lauise Rankin and Alwilda Rankin Harmon at home.

Mrs. Rankin had a wide circle of friends in western New York and Pennsylvania, where she and Dr. Rankin were associated for many years in church work. Dr. Rankin served as pastor of various Methodist Episcopal churches for over 25 years while a member of the Erie, Pa., conference. In 1912 he transferred to the Detroit, Mich., conference and served a three-year pastorate at Houghton. In 1915 Dr. Rankin retired from the active ministry and with Mrs. Rankin and one daughter came to Southern California, where they have lived at Long Beach, Los Angeles and Glendale for the past seven years.

The services for Mrs. Rankin will be held at the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn cemetery, on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment at a later date will be made at the former home at Butler, Pa.

POLICE MAKE ONE DADDY VERY HAPPY

Mr. Lochener of 339 North Howard street reported to the Glendale police yesterday afternoon that his little three-year-old son has been lost, strayed or stolen, and asked the aid of the police force. Before the police had been on the job a great while, a little bareheaded kiddie in blue overalls was located. He was taken back to his daddy, safe and smiling.

MINERS' ENEMY TAKES STAND

Chaffin was brought into court under escort.

KLAN TERRORS?

MONTROSE HAS FIRE

The Glendale fire department answered a call from the Montrose oil station in Montrose. The trouble proved to be a brush fire and it was soon extinguished by the Glendale laddies.

Lady Astor by Wireless Says Husband Is "There"

Questioned about husbands as she arrived in America after an eight-year absence, Lady Nancy Astor, first woman seated in Parliament, recommended her own Lord Astor and opined that they were pretty much the same everywhere. She thinks women here and in England have about the "same outlook"—in morality, politics and opportunity. Lady Astor returned to her native land to deliver a series of lectures.

VALLEY ROAD FOLK PLAN BIG EVENING ENTERTAINMENT

Mayor to Sing, Reeves to Speak, Mrs. Moberly to Cook

It is evident that the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association is trying to set the pace for all the other improvement and betterment and advancement associations of the city.

Tuesday evening the organization is to have a social in Yeoman hall on San Fernando road and here are some of the inducements mentioned in the announcement sent to members:

Mayor Robinson says he will sing.

Mrs. Moberly says her cook can bake the finest cakes of any one in Glendale and she is going to try and prove it by having a supply on hand that night.

The Hon. H. W. Wright, supervisor of the fifth district, is going to tell us how we can get a bridge across to Griffith park and about how soon we can get it.

Roy Johnston (Go-get-'em Johnston), is telling all his friends to be at the hall before 8 o'clock, as he knows it will be crowded, and they won't be able to get in after that time.

President Griffin says he doesn't have to do any work; he appoints committees and makes them do the work and sees that they get results.

City Manager Reeves has agreed to make a short and snappy speech. He said that he would rather talk to our organization than any other in Glendale, because he knows he is among friends.

Charles J. Griffensays he is a good judge of talent and will have a supply for us Tuesday night.

Mrs. Cobb says she came from the south where they know how to make doughnuts and that she learned her trade in the south. All those who attended the last social say she is past master at the trade.

Dr. Jessie Russell will be there and always has a nice story to tell.

All these good things are to be furnished free and it is evident from the program the association is putting over—fancy lights the whole length of the boulevard and a bridge over the Los Angeles river to Griffith park—that members are rich and influential. It is also evident, however, that they are not stiff-necked and proud and that they are genuine boosters for Glendale who are ready to "brighten the corner" where they are. Any one desiring further information concerning the party can get it by addressing L. H. Wilson, secretary, 1034 San Fernando road.

SOVIET RULE IN CARRICK-ON SUIR

DUBLIN, May 15.—With three dead in Belfast after street fighting last night, soviet rule in Carrick-on-Suir, where transport wrokers hold a creamery, and rebellion against the free state again cropping out through the south, Ireland will once more turn to Great Britain for assistance in a peace settlement.

MAY LORN CAT SEEKS ITS HOME

"I want to go home," says the poor little cat. "Will some one show me the way to go home?"

This pretty little tabby strayed forlornly to 350 West Broadway, and the good lady living there wants the owner of the little cat to come and get the pet.

FIRST OF THE FIVE BUDDIES' HOMES AT LA CRESCENTA TO START CONSTRUCTION

Sufficient Funds Are Collected to Insure Payment for One of the Little Homes on Buddies' Land in the Hills of La Crescenta

BUDDIES SUCCOR MRS. CHRISTENSON

Decided as Enough Had Been Received for Initial House That Mrs. Christenson Should Have It as the Reward of Her Pioneering

The first of the five buddies' homes at La Crescenta will start this week.

The first of the little houses for the five boys from Thornycroft will be that of Christenson, whose wife pioneered for him on the lot they own at La Crescenta, living in a tent there alone.

The house will be built by the union labor of the city, free of labor cost and with materials supplied at cost.

It will be funded by money gathered in the merchants' sales, and their donations and the contribution from the Glendale Press, together with those made by some of the patriotic citizens of the city. There is more than enough for one home. Almost enough for two.

The other homes will be completed as money is received.

Donations for the other homes will be received by Delos Smith, manager of the Brand boulevard branch of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank.

The second home, if money is received to pay for the material, will also be built by the free gift of the union labor of the city.

The five buddies held a consultation and decided that Christianson should have the first home.

His wife had pioneered for him while he was in the sanitarium. She had lived through cold weather in the tent. The heated term is upon the district. In a tent on a hot day the temperature is not bearable.

So it was decided that the Christiansons should have the first home.

Maybe, the Glendale Daily Press thought, after the little home is up, further donations will make it possible for the erection of a second little home, for a second of the married men.

Mrs. E. Franquinet of 826 South Mariposa, Glendale, has donated one goat to the housekeeping homestead of the Christiansons, which will be started this week.

For the benefit of a widow of a veteran who died last week at Sawtelle, Mrs. Franquinet is offering to sell four good milk goats, one half Saanan breed. The sale is to be in connection with the sale of tickets, which can be secured at the Glendale Press.

The widow has been left with three minor children and very little funds to face the world.

Chief of Police Fraser has approved her plan to help the widow.

While the hammers and saws, mortar and lath, cement and plaster are forming the first little home for Glendale's five buddies at La Crescenta this week, the public is invited to watch the home go up.

La Crescenta folks will be there, for the folks of that little town have contributed no less than one-fifth of the cost for the entire construction.

ROUND TABLE AT BOLTON HALL TONIGHT

Boy Scout Troop Leaders Called to Assemble Early

A round table for troop leaders of the Verdugo Hills council, Boy Scouts, is to be held tonight in Bolton Hall, Tujunga. The Women's auxiliary of the American Legion there is planning a surprise in the way of refreshments.

The speaker of the evening will be Calvin McCray, a graduate of U. S. C. and assistant scout executive of the Los Angeles Boy Scout council. His subject will be, "Giving Boy Scout Tests."

H. Benjamin Robison, chairman of the committee on standards and awards, will explain the new system of test requirements and certificates which were approved by the round table and adopted by the executive board.

All scout masters, assistant scout masters and commmitteemen are being asked to meet at the district boy scout office, 108 North Brand between 7 and 7:30 p. m. and will be taken in autos to Tujunga, the start being made promptly at 7:30.

The next round table meeting is scheduled for a Burbank weekend camp when it is expected a big powwow will be held. The whole program will be devoted to 1922 summer activities.

WAR GRAFTERS TO BE INVESTIGATED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Assurance of quick enactment of two bills providing Attorney General Daugherty with money and machinery for prosecution of war grafters was given by Republican leaders today as the house convened. Daugherty is picking a "fraud cabinet" of lawyers to aid in the prosecution.

One bill appropriates $500,000 to the department of justice for employment of special investigators and counsel, and the other creates a special grand jury in the District of Columbia.

GAS PROBE COMING FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The investigation ordered by the senate to determine whether a conspiracy to raise prices exists among big oil producers will get under way just as soon as the proper witnesses can be secured.

Senator McKellar, Tennessee, who introduced the resolution, said he would not permit the manufacturers' committee, to which it was referred, to delay.

LLOYD GEORGE TO MEET RUSSIANS AT THE HAGUE

United States Is Invited to Be Present at Meeting

GENOA, May 15.—"We propose to meet the Russians at The Hague around the same table on terms of absolute equality," Lloyd George announced today, explaining the allied plan to adjourn the Genoa conference.

"This is our final move. If they refuse, we have nothing further to say. I sincerely hope the United States will accept our invitation to be present."

LOST AUTOMOBILE IS LOCATED HERE

An automobile was found at the corner of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road yesterday afternoon by the Glendale police, and it was towed up to the city hall for safekeeping. Later in the day Mr. May of the firm of May & Hellman called the department, and upon being informed that the car was at the city hall, went up and regained the machine.

CITY EMPLOYES TO START VACATIONS

Vacations of city employes will begin June 1. City Manager Reeves stated this morning that the heads of the various departments are submitting reports as to when the employes in their departments desire to take their "two weeks." Each department head is arranging a schedule that will affect the department as little as possible. Some of these employes are going to the hills, others will take to the seashore, and all of them will try to come back fit for another year's hard work.

DECORATION DAY PLAN DISCUSSION

There will be a meeting of the Memorial day committee in the Intermediate school tonight, and all the members of this committee are expected to be present. Another meeting of this committee will be held tomorrow night at the same place. At both of these meetings matters of unusual importance will be presented.

MEDICO HELD UP

NEW YOFK, May 15.—Because he refused to leave his home in pajamas and treat a patient in a taxi, Dr. Shirly Sprague found a fistfight on his hands. Scantily clad, on his doorstep, he knocked out the solicitor for the patient.

William Howard Taft Gets Good Laugh

William Howard Taft, former president, now chief justice of the United States supreme court, is enjoying things immensely. He didn't let the camera man in on the joke, but from the looks of this remarkable close-up, it must have been a choice morsel of cleverness. The picture was snapped just after Taft had become a life member of the new Congressional Country club.

DOG CATCHING IS ON IN CITY SAYS CHIEF

Watch Your Dog or He Will Be Shot at Sunrise

The dog catching crew is on the job. Chief of Police Fraser gave the final words of instruction this morning to the boys who will gather them in, this being something to this effect:

"Remember, you are out to get stray dogs—not to listen to protests. If the owners of dogs protest, tell them to report to the Glendale chief of police. We will take care of them. Everyone in Glendale has heard about this dog muzzling ordinance and no excuses will be accepted.

"All dogs must be tied, muzzled, or kept in a yard that is fenced so that it cannot get out or cannot jump over. If they are not so taken care of they will be brought in. If dogs are left in machines, they must be tied, otherwise they will be taken. In fact, the dogs must be put in such a position that they cannot possibly injure anyone but the owner. If he wants to take a chance that is up to him. We are here to protect the public and we are going to do it."

OLD GUARD OF PA. CONFIDENT

Republicans of Penrose's State Are Confident of Election's Results

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 15.—Regular republican state organizations leaders are confident they will be able to deliver the votes tomorrow that will nominate Geo. E. Alter for governor over Gifford Pinchot, independent republican.

The contest between George Wharton Pepper and William J. Dorke for the senatorial nomination is regarded as "safe" for Pepper.

Fighting as they have not been compelled to fight in a decade, the old Penrose-Knox politicians received final reports here today of a painstaking canvass which covered every county in the state. The results are such that the leaders are convinced neither Alter nor Pepper can be beaten unless—the women bolt.

To an unprecedented degree, every politician asserts, the final result will "depend upon the women."

Women are voting tomorrow for the first time in a Pennsylvania state primary. And the politicians in both the organization and anti-organization camps confess that all "dope" is based upon guesses as to what the women will really do.

The contest here has attracted national attention because it is primarily a fight by the old Penrose organization, leaderless since his death, to hold itself together and go on functioning as a dominant factor not only in Pennsylvania politics, but in national politics, as well.

Arrayed against this organization is the progressive republican revolt led by Pinchot. If Pinchot wins tomorrow the progressive republicans in a dozen states will have visions of sweeping into control of the party.

BANDITS GET $30,000

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 15.—Two detectives were wounded by three bandits, who obtained $30,000 of the Frisco railroad's payroll here today.

Ida Wright Will Fight Dismissal She Insists

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—Ida Wright Jones will fight her dismissal by District Attorney Woolwine, she declared today.

Miss Jones, who was said to have been dismissed as juvenile investigator because she was preparing to "sell Woolwine's reputation to his political opponents," today said she would put her case fully before the county civil service commission.

She blamed the entire affair on "plotters in the district attorney's office," who, she said, had made both herself and Woolwine their victims. She said she would give all the facts ot the commissioners and let them decide.

Woolwine's note Saturday, stating that Miss Jones, had been discharged because she had made affidavits that he had been intimate with her, was commented upon by at least one member of the civil service commission as "irregular." He indicated, however, that the commission would probably take no other action than to point out to Woolwine that before dismissing an employe he should communicate the facts to the commission and obtain approval for his action.

GLENDALE FIGHT FOR BUS LINE IS WATCHED

C. D. Gulick, Returning From East End Interest Aroused

C. D. Gulick, traffic manager of Glendale, returned Saturday from a trip of several weeks in the east. He went direct from Glendale to Lima, Ohio, and after a few days he went on to New York, Detroit and other cities.

"Throughout my entire trip I received the finest kind of treatment," says Mr. Gulick this morning. "I saw more of New York in two days than the average person sees in six months. I met everyone of the big fellows from the mayor down to the janitor, and I sure had some time.

"Detroit is the finest city from all angles in the east. Everything there is municipally owned and everything in that city runs like clockwork. I went through the Ford factories and I find that Henry is turning the little stunt of making a Ford every six seconds—do you catch that—every six seconds.

"I spent five days in Chicago, where I was the guest of the International Harvester company. The folks there opened the city to me and showed me a grand time. While in the east I met the managers of most of the big truck factories. I find that the entire east has its eyes on Glendale, and the motor industry is looking right now at the fight Glendale is making for a municipally owned motor bus line. I find that the largest railroads in the country are placing orders right now for motor buses of the very latest pattern. I also find that the Southern Pacific is fighting harder than any railroad in the country to beat the Glendale motor bus line, or, in fact, any kind of motor bus operation that would come in any way in competition with it. From many sections in Oregon and Washington orders are right now being received by the California motor bus maufacturers.

"I find that in the east production along all lines is speeding up, and the manufacturers are now faced with the work of taking care of this increased business. For instance, in one factory while going east I saw one entire floor where not a wheel was turning. When I returned ten days later I found that this floor was running at 75 per cent of capacity.

"But Glendale is good enough for me. And now that I am back I intend to put considerable time on the business of transportation in Glendale."

CHILD LABOR LEGAL SUPREME COURT SAY

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The supreme court today declared unconstitutional the second attempt of congress to prevent child labor throughout the nation.

In an appeal from a decision from a North Carolina court, the supreme court held that a tax imposed by congress on child labor and its products with the view of eliminating the working of children, was illegal.

Y. M. C. A. TO ENTERTAIN ITS LEADERS

Executive Committee to Show Its Appreciation of Work

INFORMAL DINNER

Mrs. Rex Kelley to Be Hostess of Evening at Methodist Church

This evening Y. M. C. A. leaders are to be the guests of the executive committee of the district organization at a banquet to be given at the First Methodist church in appreciation of their efficient service.

Except for an address by State Secretary H. O. Hill, who will also be a guest, it will be a quite informal social affair at which summer activities will be discussed to some extent.

Mrs. Rex Kelley will be the hostess of the evening and the excellence of the dinner is therefore assured. Covers will be laid for Howard Butterfield, G. Edwin Murphy, William Marple, Bert Rolf, Harry Marple, P. L. Hatch, Carl Seitter, S. H. Wilcox, W. G. Boyd, Sabin Buck, C. H. Muhleman, Maynard Toll, Dale F. Wood, Philips Henderson, B. M. Winder, David Black, Rex Kelley, C. W. Ingledue, H. L. Finlay, W. F. Tower, J. S. Thompson, C. D. Lusby, Dr. J. Anderson, Dr. C. M. Crist, Richardson D. White, George U. Moyse, F. S. Moore, H. E. Saleen, E. B. Thomas, T. S. Stevenson, Sam Sutherland, Arthur Martin, Ira Wiggins, Wilbur Salle, Lee Gildersleeve, Chester Tanner and State Secretary Hill.

The next Y. M. C. A. event will be a banquet to be given for all of the groups, Friday evening, May 26, in the Baptist church by Hi-Y boys, the committee of arrangements being composed of Dale Wood, Maynard Toll, George Jordan, Dick Fischer, Robert Holland and Philips Henderson.

At this function Josiah Poeton from Claremont will be the speaker. It will be in the nature of a camp reunion and for that reason the address by Mr. Poeton will be especially appropriate. Following the war he gained great prominence through the manner in which he handled camps for children for the French government. They were orphans from the devastated area and in the largest of them were 12,000 boys and girls.

The boys' orchestra of the Pasadena Y. M. C. A. will be present and play and the program will include a number of other interesting numbers.

An event of special interest to the Hi-Y's will be their journey to Long Beach the 27th, where they will be entertained for the afternoon and evening by the Hi-Y's of that city in return for the hospitality extended here. The program will include a swim in the new plunge, a banquet and after dinner program in the evening.

HARDING TO GIVE FINAL BONUS WORD

WASHINGTON, May 15.—President Harding this week will give his final word on the soldier bonus bill pending before the senate, it was learned at the White House today.

Senator Smoot, Utah, called at the White House to discuss his bill confining the adjusted compensation to long-term insurance. He talked with the President for an hour but declined to indicate Harding's view of his measure. If his bill is defeated in the senate he will seek to have the sales tax incorporated in whatever bonus measure is passed, he said.

VICTORIOUS LIFE CLOSES SESSION

Sunday Meeting Proves a Remarkable Demonstration

Yesterday, the closing day of the Victorious Life conference held throughout the week at the Presbyterian church, was in every way a great day. Many were present from a distance.

Rev. Robert C. McQuilkin spoke in the morning, centering his thought about the words, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." This is a time and place for a close personal interview with Jesus Christ. His love is to separate us from sin and unrighteousness. He loves us in spite of knowing all that is in us. The victorious life is just the normal christian life as Christ means it to be lived. It is a life that has laid all; including all responsibilities and anxieties, on the Lord. Christians who say they fully believe all God says, and then disbelieve by holding on to their own old anxieties, terribly dishonor their Lord. The only barrier between you and the whole of God's mercy is the one you yourself put up. He is ready to do all for you.

Dr. Ramsey in the afternoon spoke upon the return of the Lord in its relation to every-day living. We know He is to come again, because He plainly said so while here, and afterwards reaffirmed it over and over through the inspired writers of the epistles. He will come before any universal peace—there can be none otherwise.

As to the significance of it with relation to present-day living—all the statements about it are given to us in close relation with admonitions to true godly living and activity. When He comes He will gather all His own for their rewards. So then it makes a very great difference how we are going on living; the spirit and aim in our living have everything to do with it.

Mr. McQuilkin added, emphasizing that all phases of God's truth make up one truth, never to be separated. To be found ashamed, unprepared, at Christ's coming, will be the greatest pain a christian can know. The solemn warnings of God's word about this have been terribly unheeded.

Dr. Ramsey in the evening spoke upon knowing God. Christ came to make us know. When we find God we find ourselves. You must see Him as He truly is, then you can forever rest in Him. It is Satan that wants you to think of Him as a terrible master. But Christ has everlastingly taken sin out of our way, and we are free in Him to come.

NAZARENE TENT STARTS REVIVAL

Reverend Leineweiber Preaches on Text From Joel

The series of revival meetings was started at the Nazarene tent, on Glendale avenue near Broadway, yesterday afternoon, the attendance being all that could be expected. At 2:30, Rev. Leineweiber, former superintendent of the California district, preached on the need of a Holy Ghost revival, and took his subject from the second chapter of Joel, and described the awful conditions of the people in sin and the judgments that followed. He showed that a true repentance was needed in order that the Holy Spirit might be poured out, and said: "After this I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh."

At 7:30 Jack Sanders, business manager of Pasadena university, also preached on the need of a Holy Ghost revival, such as Nehemiah had in his time, saying, "We need a revival of tears and repentance and turning to God with fasting and prayer." He then gave his experience, and described his life, from a drunkard, gambler and dishonest man to a trustworthy, honest business man, by having been made a new creature in Jesus Christ and being wholly sanctified.

The meetings will continue every night at 7:30 except Saturday, for a month, during which time leading preachers and teachers from Pasadena university will preach. Special music and singing. Every one is invited.

HOSPITAL DAY AT SANITARIUM

Many Visit Rooms on Day Mared for National Reception

The Glendale hospital and sanitarium observed national hospital day by holding open house Friday afternoon. Quite a large number of people visited the hospital and were shown through the rooms and laboratories, and all were surprised at the wonderful equipment found in the new hospital. Several of the head nurses and nurses in training took the guests through, and told of the different methods of caring for the sick.

On account of the serious illness of several patients, it was impossible to give any sort of a program, but the workings of this large institution were very interesting and new to most of the guests who visited there that day.

MOONSHINE DRIVING RABBITS FROM CORONER'S LABORATORY

Anybody seeing a bleary-eyed rabbit staggering through the streets should report the matter at once to Coroner Hoffman of Cook county, Ill. In a hutch in the coroner's laboratory scientific tests are being made of the effects of moonshine on bunnies and guinea pigs. Every morning the little fellows get their tipple. When a count of noses was made the other day in Chicago one of the bunnies was missing. The coroner is afraid "squirrel" whisky doesn't agree with rabbits.

BANDITS HOLD UP GOLDEN STATE

Crack Train of El Paso and Southwestern Under the Gun

TUCSON, Ariz., May 15.—Bandits who held up the Golden State Limited on the Rock Island road several miles south of here today were routed by the train crew, when one of the bandits was shot by an express messenger, according to word received by the sheriff's office.

Five bandits took part in the hold-up. They scattered after the fatal shot was fired, having obtained nothing from the train.

While posses were trailing the fleeing bandits, sheriff's deputies were seeking to identify the dead man, believing his identity would definitely determine that of his companions.

An impetuous inspector was worried by the noise made by the scholars in the next room. At length, unable to bear the uproar any longer, he opened the door and burst upon the class.

Noticing one boy taller than the others talking a great deal, he caught him by the collar, hurled him into the next room and placed him in a chair, saying: "Now sit there and be quiet!"

Ten minutes later a small head appeared round the door and a meek little voice said: "Please, sir, you've got our teacher!"

McCarthy had worked on the same farm for the last sixty years, and he was very proud of his record. One day his employer said to him: "McCarthy, you are getting very old, and I think it about time you retired."

"Me retire, sir? Why, I worked for yer grandfather, yer father and one of yer uncles before you became boss. If I had known this wasn't to be a permanent job I wouldn't have taken it on," said the old man, indignantly.

Eat and Be Eaten

By JOHN BRECK

The wild wind of St. Patrick's Day spread abroad tidings of an unseasonable feast in the smoke from Jim's chimney to any one with an attentive nostril. I sniffed it myself, and was duly envious. Luxury comes high—though in this case the price wasn't entirely due to the high cost of living.

On the day before the prospector and I had been projecting around the shore ice that edges the river, peering into the cracks to find where the muskrats of a marshy island had tunneled out to water. Their burrows turned and twisted through the sand beneath the snow. When he exclaimed, "Hello! Who's this?" I thought he had found one of their inmates.

But it was my neighbor, trudging quickly up the shore, dragging something behind him. It wasn't a sled—it didn't run that smoothly, though the polished surface he trod so gingerly had scarcely a ripple frozen in it. A moment later Jim changed his course and swung his prize triumphantly around before our admiring eyes. It was a tremendous snapping turtle, on her back, with a tow-rope tied to each hind paw.

She was enormously fat; the flesh billowed about the edges of her plastron, the horny breastplate of the turtle kind, as though she would burst out of her shell. She was appallingly ugly, all wrinkles and warts and tubercles of assorted sizes. And she was not sweet-tempered; she had the pop eyes and the hooked beak of the stage virago; wordless curses poured from her toothless jaws. She made ineffectual passes with claws as long and curved as a wild-cat's.

"Where did you get her?" we chorused.

He pointed down our crack. "Saw something moving in one o' those muskrat runs, and poked my spear into it. 'Twas so hard I took it for a stone, and I went to pull it out, and——"

He paused. Plainly it was her head he had discovered.

"You ought to have been asleep this time of year," I reproved the snapper. "What were doing there?"

"Come out for a breath of air," she sniffed, illustrating loudly.

"Come out for a bite of muskrat," I corrected. "Well, it's eat and be eaten, you know." Then I spoke to Jim. "There's one good meal that didn't cost you much."

"Didn't it?" he growled. "I dunno why it didn't!" He unwrapped the bloody bandage from his hand. And if you know what the legal compensation is for a wrecked middle finger you know what that feast cost. But you ought to have smelled it!

COMMERCIAL CLUB DANCE IS SUCCESS

Members of the Burbank Commercial club and their friends enjoyed the dance given Saturday night by the club in its rooms over the Victory theatre on East San Fernando boulevard.

The club entertains every Saturday night with either a card party or a dance, but last Saturday night the entertainment committee, under the leadership of its chairman, A. Philbeck, eclipsed its most brilliant previous record.

The big feature of the dance was the orchestra imported from Los Angeles for the occasion. Four colored musicians played jazzy fox trots and dreamy waltzes in a manner that made it impossible to keep the feet still.

Invitations had been sent to approximately 100 members and friends of the club, and practically every one receiving an invitation attended.

SUMMARY OF SPORTS FROM THE EAST

NEW YORK.—James Barnes, American open golf champion, will sail in a few days to play in the British open championships. Walter Hagen also has entered, but Jock Hutchinson, last year's winner, says he will not defend.

SAN FRANCISCO.—William M. Johnston, former national champion, beat William T. Tilden, world's singles champion, in the final round of the Pacific coast tennis championship, 7-5, 7-9, 6-1 and 6-0.

NEW YORK.—Two Americans, Miss Rosamond Sherwood, New York, and Mrs. William A. Gavin, are entered in the British women's golf championship which starts in Sandwich, England.

PARIS.—Georges Carpentier was virtually unnoticed when he returned from London, where he knocked out Ted Lewis in the first round last week. There were only a few close friends to greet him at the station.

DENVER.—Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, is ready to meet the winner of tomorrow night's bout between Champion Bob Roper and Fred Fulton, according to a telegram received by Promoter Jack Kanner from Firpo's manager.

Perhaps the easiest way to have a good time is to go ahead and have it.

ROTARIANS OF NEW YORK HEAR HOW TO LIVE

Copeland, Commissioner of Health, Tells Body Things of Interest

There are 3500 people in the United States over 100 years of age, according to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, commissioner of health of the city of New York. In an address at the Rotary club Dr. Copeland said there was no reason why every man and woman in the country should not live to be 100.

"The chief offenders in wrong living are you business and professional men," Dr. Copeland shot at the Rotarians. "During physical culture week, which is here, make up your mind to do your duty towards yourself by daily exercises. Many business men work hard at their desks all week long and then take a week-end and play eight or ten sets of tennis on Saturday and Sunday and wonder why they feel poorly the next week. Daily exercise is the panacea for what ails you. Make it an every-day affair. Take this advice even though I don't set a good example myself.

"I weigh more than I should. Multiply the number of inches you stand over five feet by six and add 110 pounds, and you will get what your correct weight should be.

"A man 50 years of age who is 50 pounds overweight has lessened his length of life 50 per cent. This has been proven by statistics of life insurance companies after studying a half million policy holders' span of life. During physical culture week learn to live right by proper exercise and not eating too much."

Among the other speakers at the Rotarians' luncheon, which was designated as physical culture day, were Anthony Fiala, Arctic and tropical explorer, who told how Colonel Roosevelt kept in good condition; William Muldoon, chairman of the national physical week committee, who urged the necessity of a 100 per cent life, normal and mental as well as physical, and Bernarr Mcfadden, publisher of Physical Culture magazine, who told the members how to eat and exercise.

BAM!

"I hear your wife is a 200-pounder."

"Yes, and some days she pounds me more than that."

Truths in Epigram

To be discontented with the divine discontent, and to be ashamed with the noble shame, is the very germ of the first upgrowth of all virtue. —Kingsley (1819-1875).

Few men have the natural strength to honor a friend's success without envy. I well know that mirror of friendship, shadow of a shade.—Aeschylus 525-456 B. C.).

FORGIVING THE DEBT

From time to time there is discussion as to erasing the American debts of Europe from the books. The total is eleven billions of dollars, a considerable sum even for a nation of large affairs. It does not appear that such a demand or request is framed by England, as sometimes has been assumed by writers hostile to Great Britain. They insinuate that England has taken this course, and then proceed to deliver sturdy blows to the bogie man of their own creation.

There have, however, been suggestions that the debt be extinguished. They even have come from American sources, on the ground that the financial difficulties of a troubled world might thus be set again upon a firm basis. A recent book is devoted to treatment of the subject. It does not advocate the policy mentioned. It calls attention to the fact that England had twenty billions invested in outside countries before the war. England still has fifteen billions invested in this manner, regardless of war debts owing to it. The United States has eighteen billions invested abroad, but this includes advances made for war purposes. Were it to annul the war debt, its investment would be reduced ot seven billion, and by the act, England made once more the over-shadowing creditor nation of the world.

There does not seem to be adequate reason why the United States should sacrifice its own interests, throw away the position it has won, and become once more a second rate financial power, even to please a friendly government. Americans have no apparent need to be alarmed at their own success. By renouncing all they have gained, they would be proclaiming a sense of fear, a desire to be commercially subservient.

Ultimate collection of the debt of course is a vast problem. The writer of the book in question says this may be done by "investing the eleven billion in foreign industries, letting it work for us in foreign countries, using it as an active business man uses his business funds to bridge over a crisis."

Perhaps to the trained financier this will seem plain enough. At least he will be able to figure on the possibility and effects of it. The average citizen will concede that it is a little out of his own line. Nevertheless, he is likely to gather from the book a disinclination to close the eleven billion dollar account as a matter of sentiment, or on the assumption that such a plan would conserve American interests.

GENERAL WOOD'S GREAT TASK

Reports from the Philippines show that General Woods did not get there any too soon. A short delay would have been disastrous to the welfare of the islands, and financially they would have been in a state of chaos.

The real truth concerning the scandalous weakness of the Harrison administration seems to have been suppressed except as brought back by Americans who have lived in the Philippines long enough to be familiar with conditions there. When they come to this country they talk freely and indignantly. They declare that independence for the Philippines must be a matter of generations yet. The present schemers for immediate release from United States control are unfit morally and intellectually for the power they seek. Some of them are known to be rogues. The men trusted and flattered by former Governor-General Harrison are not trusted by any one else. They are not respected. One native arose in the senate, when the coming of General Wood had been announced, and declared he "would rather see the island governed like hell by the natives than run like heaven by Americans." Such is the spirit of the bund nurtured by Harrison. By the way, when the latter left the islands not one white person was at the wharf to bid him farewell. There was not a white person in the islands but was glad to be rid of him.

Native chicanery was displayed by the way in which a bank established there was run by islanders. Directors of the bank organized fake companies, and ent themselves millions of pesos. They stripped the nstitution bare. By this course they gave an examle of the perspicuity that deems itself able to conuct the islands. More power in their hands could ean nothing but ruin.

WASTEFUL AMERICANS

President Edgerton of the National Association of anufacturers has been the latest to charge Amerans with being wasteful. The allegation is familiar. he truth of it generally is admitted. Mr. Edgerton ants them to spend their money on essentials, or not spend it. Unquestionably wise counsel. There ver is likely to be a unanimous standard by which e essential is to be determined. Diversions are esntial both to health and happiness. So is decent od and plenty of it. Mr. Edgerton objects to the e of money on golf. If the rebuke is intended for r. Rockefeller, it comes too late.

In the address was a well conceived condemnation the cost of distributing products, and the multiplic- of middlemen. Probably the speaker had in mind s the small dealer behind the counter than the ocsional "wheat king." It is not to be denied that ples from farm and factory pass through too many eting ownerships, and that the consumer must pay several profits. Thus there are undeserved losses both ends of the series of operation.

Then followed the outstanding statement: "When u add to this excess of distributors, the countless mber of others whose chief activities are to reform, ulate, inspect, denounce, tax, plunder, and otherlive upon those who are trying to produce something, it will not be difficult to discover the principal factor in the continued high cost of living."

It is easy to imagine the business man, who has just hired an expert to go through his books in quest of information sought by this or that bureau, reading the paragraph with grim satisfaction. He is called upon often to furnish information of which no use seems to be made. He is hedged about with rules that hamper him, yet afford nobody protection. He has to conduct his establishment by methods distasteful and burdensome to him, and then suddenly there is a switch in the rules, and he is censured for not knowing it.

Probably such a man will read the paragraph twice and then remark wearily "Ain't it the truth?"

WOMEN AGAINST WAR

At a national congress of women in Tacoma, Mrs. Higgins of Massachusetts said that the women of the nation now have an exceptional opportunity to end war for all time. She is president of the organization, which is composed of Mothers' and Parent-Teacher associations all over the country. Thirty-nine states were represented at the Tacoma gathering.

If there is any immediate way in which women could end war for all time, the world, somewhat battle scarred and weary, would be glad to see it put into effect. Men are not friendly to war, either. They do not take up arms joyously and march to death in the trenches because there is anything within themselves that yearns for such a fate. They "go where duty calls," go readily and bravely, but never because they prefer war to peace. If the stability of a country is threatened by an enemy, the men of the country will fight. Were they not of such fiber, there would be no country, no thrill of loyalty anywhere.

To end war will be a process far more rugged and prolonged than the passing of resolutions. It will have to have its base on the world-wide desire to "do right and deal justly." So long as individuals are wronged they will resent it, and respond with violence, if their adversary is not to be subdued in milder fashion. The same is true of nations. Germany's conduct was such that the world was forced into conflict as the one means of salvation. While any nation of the earth continues in the Prussian attitude of mind, there can be no absolute safety from armed conflict. So at a glance, the fact is discerned that the root of war runs deep. To out-law war is a pleasing suggestion, but an outlaw is not restrained by statute. Until all the nations unite in declaring war a crime, and make common cause against the criminal, the women, with full credit for fine intentions, seem helpless save as they exert an uplifting moral influence.

After a man has said grace at a meal some time is required for those around the table to feel natural again.

The hotel with home comforts doesn't begin to compare with the one without home discomforts.

CRIME PREVENTION

The American Bar association recently gave its attention to a study of the underlying reasons for the crime wave which has swept the country since the close of the war.

Many reasons were advanced by criminology students, lawyers, doctors and others. Some insisted that the crime wave is the natural outgrowth of war through the breaking down of moral fibre; others blamed prohibition; others insisted it was because of a growing belief that the courts would favor the rich.

One layman declared that it might be a good idea to put many of the practising lawyers in jail, and others insisted that punishments for crime were not sufficiently severe.

The Adams Express company, so the newspapers informed us, is taking drastic measures to protect its treasures, and is inaugurating a service of armored trucks, with bottom, sides and top covered with steel plates, and with the driver enclosed in a bullet-proof glass cab.

Each truck is to carry a crew of five men armed with revolvers, and loopholes are provided all around it for the crew to fire from within.

All of this represents an elaborate continuation of the wrong method of dealing with crime, to which the mind of the world is committed.

That method is based upon a piece of sheer fiction. That fiction is that crime is prevented by punishment. That is to say, when a man commits a crime he should be hurt, in which case he will not commit another crime, and others will be deterred from imitating him. Anybody who is old enough to go to school knows that the world has been carrying out that program faithfully so far back that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary; also that it has not stopped crime yet.

Said schoolboy also, if he would study a little deeper, would discover that crimes have diminished in the civilized world to a certain degree steadily, and that that diminution has exactly followed the diminution in the severity of punishment.

That means that in proportion as we have stopped hurting people for crime they have stopped committing it.

This is a general law. Like all general laws it will be poo-hooed by most people who can see nothing but particular instances.

It is not a question, however, of arguments, it is merely a question of fact. That fact is: that notwithstanding the many criminals today in Chicago, for instance, life in Chicago is much more secure by day or night than it was in London 250 years ago when there were some 200 crimes for which a man might be hung.

Crime is much more abated in the twentieth century in a country where the constitution prohibits cruel and unusual punishment than it was in the age of piety when criminals were regularly tortured and judges got at the truth by pulling off finger nails and stretching joints on the rack.

The real fact is that the only dependable prevention of crime is the power of moral inhibition in the populace.

Whatever strengthens that sense of moral inhibition decreases crime. And that is all there is to it.

New York is safe only because the people are not disposed to violence, because they have consciences. If they all wanted to murder, burn and rape, not all the armies in Christendom could prevent the city from becoming a hell inside of a week, and an ash heap inside of a month.

Showing the improvement in the method of making nails.
And better nails at that.

* * *

But to get back to the carpenter and his nails.
To drive a nail needs a hammer.
An implement with driving force behind it.
Otherwise the nail would be of little service.
Because it needs to be driven before it will serve a useful purpose.
So we need two things in other building as well.
Ideas and driving force.
Enthusiasm.
The will to do.
Otherwise we might have all the ideas in the world and be like the carpenter with plenty of nails and no hammer.

* * *

There needs to be the dream of the tunnel through the mountain.
But there needs to be the driving force to bore it through the mountain.
There needs to be the dream and the driving force.
The nail and the hammer.

* * *

Perhaps you have a lot of ideas.
Something you ought to do.
A friendly action.
The building of a business.
The remedying of an evil.

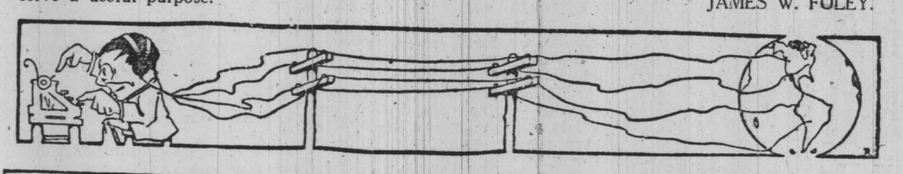
* * *

And you have your mind full of ideas.
Just as the carpenter has the pocket in his apron full of nails.
But you need the hammer.
The will to do.
The driving force.

* * *

And there are many men in the world who are like carpenters with plenty of nails and no hammer.
They dream.
Speculate and think and wonder and resolve.
But they never DO.
Nails without hammers.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

Song—Hildegarde Haw thorne (18—— ——)

Sing me a sweet, low song of night
Before the moon is risen,
A song that tells of the stars' delight
Escaped from day's bright prison,
A song that croons with the cricket's voice,
That sleeps with the shadowed trees,
A song that shall bid my heart rejoice
At its tender mysteries.

And then when the song is ended, love,
Bend down your head unto me,
Whisper the word that was born above
Ere the moon had swayed the sea;
Ere the oldest star began to shine,
Or the farthest sun to burn—
The oldest of words, O heart of mine,
Yet newest, and sweet to learn.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SHORT SERMONS
[Kansas City Star]

The St. Louis Episcopal vestrymen have declared for the 22-minute sermon. Apparently a compromise between those who held out for twenty minutes and those who were willing to go twenty-five. Incidentally it is to be noted that the clergy who were present at the meeting of the vestrymen took the opportunity to drive a bargain. They acquiesced in the 22-minute sermon on condition the vestrymen attend both the sermon and the non-sermon service. So everybody is satisfned. The vestrymen get the shorter sermon and the ministers get the larger congregations.

But what would our ancestors of the first half of the last century and before say to such a trimming down of the sermon? They used to go early in the morning, listen to a two-hour preliminary discourse, take a recess for luncheon and get the last three hours of the sermon in the afternoon.

There was Professor Parks of Andover seminary, for instance, a righteous man of endurance if ever there was one. And learned, too. "O God," he would exclaim in his prayers, "Thou art the sine qua non of our hopes, and the ne plus ultra of our expectations." He was known to have prayed for a solid hour. As for the length of his sermon, tradition dares not say. It knows it wouldn't be believed.

But would anyone have dared to propose to Professor Parks, or any of his contemporaries such a plan as the St. Louis vestrymen have suggested? The consequences would have been frightful to contemplate.

Times have changed. The 22-minute plan of St. Louis isn't ideal. A minister might have a 15-minute idea one Sunday and a 45-minute one the next, and both would suffer at being forced into a 22-minute mold. Still, there's no telling. Let's see how it works.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

They're talking about omitting the "promise-to-obey" clause in the marriage ceremony, along with the "with-all-my-worldly-goods-I-thee-endow" one. Why not? Both have been more honored in the breach than in the observance of late years, haven't they? Fess up, husbands and wives, be honest! What every husband knows is that whatever the vow at the altar, he is the one who does most of the obeying. The successful wife is the one who can so tactfully and subtlely present the necessity that it seems to man his own desire.

As for worldly goods, who has any nowadays when the income tax, and the luxury taxes, and the state taxes, and the county taxes, and city taxes are paid, along with the fire insurance, and life insurance, and accident insurance, automobile casualty insurance, and the rent, and the grocery, and coal, and clothing, and upkeep bills? If any dollars do remain, ninety-nine chances out of a hundred some hold-up man relieves one of them. Small chance for Mr. Average Citizen to "endow" anything or anybody, isn't there? (Don't all of you speak at once—we all know the answer!)

Yes, that last clause of a time-honored ritual is mere supererogation—calling for more than may be expected of any one. It deserves being shelved, along with those "modern" arithmetic problems which have to do with the selling of butter at twenty cents a pound and eggs at twelve cents a dozen. Ideas change with the times and we must change with them. Why be hopelessly out of date?

INDICTMENT OF WAR
[New Bedford Standard]

The most serious charge against Lieutenant Colonel Major, whose promotion is being fought by former officers of the Yankee division, is that he was wantonly wasteful of the lives of his men. The aim of warfare is to kill, and being killed one of its inescapable risks, yet evidently there is a point at which casualties excite revulsion even among those who know that many must be killed. Major is not the only officer charged with exposing his men to needless danger and unfavorable odds. It was said of Grant; and losses incurred by the French in the offensive directed by Nivelle cost him his command. Yet day after day, when French casualties numbered 5000, the communiques would say there was nothing to report.

We hold no brief for Colonel Major—if the charges are true he ought to get out of the army. The fact to be considered, though, is that even with officers who are not "hardboiled" and who spare their men to the utmost, war is a deadly business. Colonel Major's callousness—if he was callous—would not have cost any lives if there had been no armed conflict. Viewed in the right light this case, and that of Major Peck, and that of "Hard-Boiled" Smith, are indictments of war.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It is impossible to judge the character and purpose of a man by a single act. None but the man may know the reasons for a course taken by himself, and deemed objectionable by everybody else. It may be that even a man who draws up a will depriving his widow of her property if she presumes to remarry, could justify the act were he on the spot.

HENRY JAMES

Sometimes men are tyrants in the home, and so far as they are able, tyrants in the business world. But this ambition to be bully and boss usually vanishes at indications of the final summons. The individual then begins to believe he has other matters too important to be neglected longer. He is likely to think of his soul, and what comes next. He reviews his life, searches out the contemptible periods that marked it. He wants to die decent and respected.

If he remembers that he has made a will by the terms of which he may still govern the living after he has become a handful of dust, this is one of the things of which he is naturally—if a really repentant sinner—must be ashamed. It is not pleasing to reflect that the mourners are to gaze at a dead form that notwithstanding death, continues to be boss and bully.

The first duty of a widow thus aspersed and humiliated is to break the will, and failing in this, to make a speedy essay at marrying somebody worth while.

A banker in this state who went wrong, has been sentenced to the penitentiary on six counts. The sentences are from "one to ten years" on each count, and as they run consecutively, are readily seen to stretch to an impressive theoretical total.

If the ex-banker desires to gather comfort from precedent he might reflect that "one to six years" interpreted under the benign parole law, is likely to mean a trifle more than a year. Thus he faces imprisonment for something more than six years.

Another precedent even more soothing seems to shorten by means of a pardon, the shortest term a court may give a banker gone wrong.

Probably it is true that some people go to a horseshow in order to see the horses, but the great majority of spectators have other reasons.

Some are there to display their beauty and styles, and others to look upon the same. And then among those present are still others who desire thus to contribute to charity.

The horseshow is a commendable institution. It stands as a barrier between a noble animal and extinction.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The man who shared my Pullman compartment on the way east from San Antonio was so full of his new discovery that he fairly bubbled. I do not know beans about his business, but that made no difference. By the time he got through talking I felt I could handle a hat, clothing and underwear emporium with the best of them.

"The whole trick," said my enthusiastic friend, "is to do a little thinking.

"Mix your colors with brains, hey?"

He said that all his life he had been buying his goods of the salesmen as they came around on their regular tours. He felt that he could not afford to go east to buy. He knew that he was being undersold by the big stores, but he thought he couldn't help it.

"They buy in great quantities and get bed-rock prices," said he. "I felt I must make up for my reduced volume of sales by the fact that I lost no money because I sold for cash."

Then something opened his eyes. He discovered that the big stores bought the smallest possible quantity of the traveling salesmen and only to open the season with. Later, when the manufacturers' floors were filled with left-overs and cancellations and unsold goods, the big store buyer could get those goods at his own price.

"He could ship by express," said my enthusiastic friend, "and get the stuff to the floor in four days. What's more, he could sell all those goods before the bills became due, while I, who bought mine at the beginning of the season, sometimes had to settle by borrowing of the bank."

The funny part is that this same chance has been under that enthusiast's eyes for twenty years. He had been that long in the business. And he is the only one of his competitors who sees it even yet.

"The most profitable article in my business," said he, "is brains."

ARIZONA ALIGNED FOR PROTECTION AGAINST FRAUD

Corporation Commissions of California and Sister State Agree

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—An unofficial working agreement between the state corporation department of California and the Arizona corporation commission was announced today by Corporation Commissioner E. M. Daugherty. This agreement was the outcome of a conference between Chairman D. F. Johnson of the Arizona corporation commission and the California commissioner.

The operation of this understanding will be beneficial to mining, oil and industrial companies whose affairs come under the supervision of the California commissioner and the Arizona commission. Several complications have arisen in the past which have embarrassed companies operating in the two states. This agreement will undoubtedly eliminate much of the "red tape" that has bound the operation of legitimate companies.

The conditions as given out are as follows:

When the "blue sky" department of Arizona or any other state has required a company's issued and outstanding securities to be deposited as an escrow pending such department's further order, and the company then applies to the commissioner of corporations of California for authority to sell its unissued shares in California, the California corporation department deputies will then adopt the following methods:

First—Insert a condition in the permit being prepared to the effect that the certificates evidencing the full number of shares be deposited with and held as an escrow by a depositary to be approved by the commissioner of corporations, etc., to be held pending his further order, etc.

Second—Require the company to obtain from the depositary with whom said certificates have been deposited pursuant to the order of the "blue sky" department of the other state, a statement showing the number of each certificate, the number of shares evidenced thereby, the date of its issuance, and the name of the person to whom it was issued.

Third—Prepare an order approving such depositary. A copy of this order will be transmitted to the depositary, with a letter in which shall be set forth the escrow condition of the commissioner of this state.

Fourth—Send a copy of the order to the "blue sky" department which has originally required the certificates to be escrowed, together with a letter setting forth the escrow condition and a request that the commissioner of corporations of this state be notified before any action is taken upon an application or a release of the escrowed shares.

EASTERN TEAMS PULL UP WITH EFFORT

Puffed After Making the Western Grade of Baseball

The New York Yankees in winning five out of seven games made the best showing in the first skirmish with the strong western teams. The Brooklyn Robins, who didn't win a game all week, made the poorest showing.

The champion Giants did well in breaking even against the Cards and the Cubs, two teams that ordinarily gave them the most trouble. The Cards won four out of six games.

After hitting a fast pace from the start, the Cubs slumped and dropped five out of six games. The Boston Braves came out of their trance and split even, while the Phillies led the eastern clubs in taking four out of six battles. The Tigers won five out of seven games and broke right into the first division. Cleveland had tough going, winning only three out of seven, and the Washington Senators continued going in their listless way and dropped five out of seven.

With a lead of four full games, the Giants are in a better position than the Yanks. Miller Huggins is only one full game ahead of the Browns and the American league champions have yet to tussle with the Browns and Indians.

The terrific batting of the Giants was slowed up when they went against the good pitching of the west, the New Yorkers getting fewer hits than any team in the league. Their million-dollar defense failed to function, also.

The Yanks are hitting timely and effectively but they have been getting the worst of the breaks and anything but the proper results from their "five-star" pitching staff.

If there is to be a real pennant race this season it looks due in the American league. The Browns are camping right on the tail of the champions and the Indians may come out and make it a three-way race. The Giants seem to have the pennant sewed up in the National league.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT THOMAS HOME IS CELEBRATED

J. C. Sherer Contributes Verse in Honor of Sister's Happy Life

Another of those beautiful celebrations which are all too rare in this age was held Sunday afternoon at the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark Thomas, 615 North Louise street, where the golden wedding anniversary of the host and hostess was suitably observed. As the hostess has been a semi-invalid for some time, it was a quiet affair, attended only by relatives and close friends, but it was all the more enjoyed.

The only guest who had been present at the wedding which took place half a century ago in Vineland, N. J., was J. C. Sherer, brother of Mrs. Thomas, who presented the celebrants with a poem voicing his congratulations and affection.

It had been the pleasure of the daughters of the hostess to provide a lovely floral setting for the event in which golden California poppies, old-fashioned yellow roses and Scotch broom were used. The same color scheme dominated the refreshments served, which included old-fashioned gold cake and golden colored sherbet.

The honorees were the recipients of many letters of congratulation from friends in the east and received quite a shower of gold coin.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are prominent members of the "Old Settlers' club," and came here 33 years ago before there was any Glendale. Mr. Thomas, who is a builder, having much to do with the home building program of the community. They had the happiness of having their children present to share in the joy of the occasion—Misses Sarah M. Thomas and Alice R. Thomas, and their son, L. Calvin Thomas. Others present besides Mr. Sherer were a cousin, Miss Sarah Fitzwater, of Los Angeles, their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ohlman and little daughter Helen of Eagle Rock, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lukens of Glendale, and Mrs. Hester Parker of Verdugo road, Glendale.

Mr. Drohan received two beautiful birthday cakes and a silver pencil from his friends.

SHE'S JUST TOLD HIM A GOOD JOKE!

WHAT SHE WANTED

"Do you know, dear," said Mrs. Smithers, after dinner, "I think it would be perfectly lovely to get that car."

"Ah?" hazarded Smithers, unfolding his evening paper.

"I mean the car we've been talking about all winter," she explained.

"Oh," he commented eloquently.

"In the first place it would save us such a lot," said Mrs. Smithers.

"Nonsense," he returned. "It's much cheaper to take a taxi when a car is needed. You can just call it when you're ready; you dismiss it at the door and get another when you're ready to start home. You pay for just the ride you get without any overhead to worry about."

"I know," said she, with a puzzled frown, "but a taxi is never, somehow, just the same as your own car. It is so nice to drive up in your own car. In a taxi you feel—oh, I don't know——"

"A taxi is every bit as good," said he. "It gets you there, doesn't it? Well, that's the main thing! And, then, too, if you run into any one on the way downtown it's up to the taxi company. With traffic as it is now there is great and grave danger of collision. Why, I was reading only yesterday that the insurance rates on collision insurance——"

"We can easily afford whatever the insurance is, I imagine," said Mrs. Smithers, tapping her foot.

That isn't the point," said her husband.

"And then a car would be so good for Polly," went on Mrs. Smithers. "She is so thin that her eyes fairly resemble saucers in her peaked little face. If we had a car she would absorb lots more fresh air than she possibly can get here in the apartment."

"Polly peaked?" said Smithers in some alarm. Why not have her sleep in the sunroom, with all of the windows open, and take her out every day for long walks?"

"Long walks," said Mrs. Smithers, "would only make her thinner. Every bit of exercise makes her lose weight in spite of all the milk I can coax her to drink."

"What she should have," said Smithers, "is a good, thick, juicy beefsteak every day for her luncheon; that would soon fatten her up."

"Yes, but it gives her so much energy that she runs it off before she can get back to school. If we had the car I could drive her back and then meet her right after school and take her out to the park. Then when it's time for you at night I could drive her down to meet you and you could drive back."

"It wouldn't be bad, would it?" said he pensively. She almost glared at him. "No," she said quietly, "it wouldn't."

"But then again," Smithers went on, "there is danger in driving down for me. You might get into some mess and get all smashed up."

"Mrs. Goodwin is capable of driving a car. I believe that I can at least do what she does. In fact, I think I am a lot more capable of doing it than she."

Smithers sat looking straight ahead of him without saying a word.

"Why don't you smoke?" asked Mrs. Smithers.

He opened his coat reflectively and took out his cigar case. A long slip of paper dropped to the floor from the pocket unnoticed by him.

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Smithers, waving a graceful hand toward it.

Smithers stooped and picked it up with a blush. "Oh, that?" he said carelessly. "That's the receipt for the car. I gave Harley a check this morning. The car will be delivered——"

"You old dear," Mrs. Smithers cried, "why didn't you say so at the start? Letting me worry and coax you like this!"

BUY A DIRECTORY CARD

A discussion once arose between a wealthy New Yorker and a British sportsman as to the relative efficiency of the noisy American newsboy and his stolid English cousin. "I'll bet you even money," said the American, "that my newsy can go to England and outsell your boy on his own corner.

"Taken," answered the confident Britisher.

Ten days later little Danny O'Brien received his armful of papers and began to get busy on a crowded London corner. Twenty feet away was Wally Stackhouse, the entry of the British sportsman. The two gamblers stood across the street. In two minutes a milling crowd was fighting to buy from Danny, while Wally stood alone on the outskirts.

"My word!" exclaimed the Britisher. "What's the secret of this?"

They strolled across the street to see.

"Big social affair at the palace!" cried Wally. "Read about it! Big social affair!" A more sensational call came from Danny. "Big surgical operation on the king!" he yelled, raucously. "Read about it!"

"Here! Here!" interrupted the excited Britisher. "There's no such news as that!"

"Watcher you talkin' about, you big mutt?" flashed Danny. "Don't you see the big headlines, 'King's Fete Comes Off Tonight?"

FRISK LIKES ADVENTURING

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Do you suppose the widow squirrel ever thanks Chips Beaver for saving her little son? Or Mammy Greencrest for drying him? Or Tad Coon for totting him up the Duck's nesting-oak and tucking him into his hole when he was nice and neat again? She did not!

How rude of her? How smart, you mean! Folks get tired of doing favors for anyone who's all the time wanting them like the widow squirrel did. She acted exactly as if she'd prefer to do it herself and they were simply interferring. She only allowed them to because she couldn't help it.

Same way about her nest hole. Did she hunt up a new one? Not at all. She couldn't leave her children. So, as usual the woodsfolk found one. They knew them all, anyway, because they'd poked their whiskers into so many when they were hunting Chatter's treasure for her. But she wouldn't consider any of them. This was too large, that was too small, and the other wasn't fit for a decent squirrel because the mice had been living in it.

Did they fancy she'd even set foot in the owl's? Even if they'd moved out it was sure to be haunted! No, nor she wouldn't take Tad's—Dr. Muskrat's Pond was too far to move her family. That's the way she went on.

"Well, then, how about the willow tree over across the Beaver Pond," suggested Tad. "Nobody's ever lived in it."

"How About the Willow Tree, Over Across the Beaver Pond?" Suggested Tad.

"Why not?" she snapped back. "What's wrong with it?"

"It's too open for winter. That's all. But it's perfect for summertime, when the leaves are all out."

She didn't want that either. She wanted to stay where she was. But the ducks were two to one and they wouldn't listen to her arguings. So she gave in and let Tad do the moving. He did it all in one trip, walking as if he were on eggs, with the whole five babies hanging onto him. They squealed with terror when he jumped over the Wicked Little Brook. All but Frisk. He squaled with joy.

How he loved adventures! even if they went wrong. And how he loved the willow tree! Two minutes after Tad put him down in the brand new home Frisk was out on the very slimmest, tip-endest twig, swinging as high and as hard as it would go. Whoopsy-daisy! Wasn't it fun!

The widow got the others settled down and then she turned to look for him. Crawling Caterpillars! Didn't she just get excited then? "Stop that!" she screamed. "Come back this very instant!" (and a whole lot more) And then—he discovered he was in trouble again.

NEXT STORY: FRISK KEEPS THE WOODSFOLK BUSY.

Psychic Eye-Strain

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Is it a mere coincidence that sighs of eye-strain—a feeling of pain or tiredness in the eyes, blurring of vision, headache, etc.—often first show themselves at a time when the person in whom they appear is undergoing an emotional stress of some sort?

Certainly coincidence can hardly be accepted as a sufficient explanation in cases where no special visual defect exists—no defect, at any rate, more serious than is common to many people who do not experience symptoms of eye-strain. In such cases the logical inference would seem to be that the emotional stress is exercising an unfavorable influence on the functioning of the eyes, just as emotional stress is known to affect adversely the workings of other bodily organs.

And from the records of various eye specialists instances are available leaving no doubt that there actually is such a thing as psychic eye-strain, the cure of which depends more on the removal of sources of emotional stress or the gaining of emotional control than it does on the prescribing of spectacles.

Thus, for example, one eye specialist, an English physician named Inman, reports the case of a young woman who consulted him because of an increasing difficulty in reading, accompanied by painful sensations in the eyes. This had persisted for several months, after setting in suddenly.

But Dr. Inman could find in the state of the young woman's eyes themselves no sufficient reason for the symptoms troubling her. There was only a slight hypermetropia, "no more than is borne by thousands of people without being conscious of it whatever."

Questioning his patient as to any special circumstance occurring at the time of, or shortly before, the onset of the eye trouble, the physician drew from her the statement that it had followed a lovers' quarrel. She had broken with a man for whom she had a sincere affection, and as a consequence had been worrying and grieving greatly.

Six months later Dr. Inman again saw this patient. In the meantime the misunderstanding with her lover had been cleared away, she was "radiantly happy," and, though not wearing glasses, could read for hours without eye discomfort of any sort.

The same physician reports from his personal experience a number of other cases in which psychic stresses of one kind or another demonstrably played a decisive part in bringing on troubles of vision. And similar instances might be cited from the observations of other eye specialists.

In fact, cases are not unknown in which complete loss of vision has followed a profoundly disturbing emotional shock. Such cases were of specially numerous occurrences among soldiers in the world war.

There was no organic injury to the eye itself. But there was blindness as positive as though the eye were actually destroyed. And this blindness persisted until, its psychic origin being recognized, treatment by pychological rather than medical means was successfully employed for the restoration of vision.

Such facts suggest, of course, additional reason for the self-cultivation of such qualities as are summed up in the phrase "mental poise." The conquest of worrying tendencies, of any tendency to excessive fear, of emotional excitability, may mean much for the conservation of eyesight as for the protection of the health in general.

INDUCTION

Dynamo Principle

A dynamo is essentially nothing
t a coil or wire rotating continusly between the poles of a mag-
t. Thus, supposing that starting
th the coil, it

rotated thru degrees from t to right as e looks down n it. During first half of
e revolution,
wires on the
ht side of the p are cutting lines of force
they move to-rd the reader
ile the lines on left side are ting the same lines as they ve away from you. Hence by plying the dynamo rule, which s given in Saturday's paper, we d that a current is being gener-d which flows down the right
e of the coil and up the left side.
will be seen that both currents
w around the coil in the same ection. The induced current is onger when the coil is in posi-n directly in the lines of force ssing from the north to the uth pole. When the coil is movparallel to the lines of force, current is being induced and nce no lines of force are being
As the coil is now moved rough the last 180 degrees of a mplete revolution, both sides are ting the same lines of force as fore, but opposite to that in hich they were first moving,
nce the current generated dur-
this last half of a revolution in the opposite direction to that the first half. If the coil is conuously rotated in the field, there-e, and alternating current is set in it, which reverses direction ery time the coil passes through e position in direct line with the es of force. This is the essential incipal of the alternating current namo. The direct current dyna-o differs from the alternating rrent dynamo, only in that a solled commutator is used for the rpose of changing the direction
the current in the external cirit every time the coil passes rough the position in direct line
th the lines of force so that curnt always flows in the same direction through this external portion of the circuit in spite of the fact that in rotating coil changes direction every half of a revolution.

Transformer Principal

If one coil be lowered inside another coil and current which is rising and falling in opposite directions, be introduced into the first coil a similar current will be induced in the outside coil and will register on a galvonometer if such an instrument were used. But the current induced in the outside coil will rise or fall, or alternate, opposite to the current in the first coil.
This represents the fundamental principal of the transformer. It is evident that to induce a current in a conductor, the latter must either cut magnetic lines of force by its movement through the field of a magnet or the magnetic field itself must be successfully created and destroyed. If the magnetic field remains constant, no reaction takes place. It should also be noted that the position of the second coil, relative to that of the first is a factor; if, instead of being parallel, the two coils are at right angles to each other, the current induced in the second coil will be greatly reduced. In such a position only one end of the second winding would be cut by the magnetic lines of flux, from the first winding.

WITH THE RADIO SCHOOL AND CLUB

School tonight! Don't forget that starting tonight the radio school will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights only. Tonight's class is a theory class and work will be continued from where we left off Saturday night. Wednesday night will consist of the former Wednesday and Thursday code classes combined. Friday night will be theory class. The classs will start at 7:30 and will continue to 8:30, the same as here-to-fore. Now don't forget the new school nights for the school will not be open on Thursdays or Saturdays.

Pendroy-Press-Newton Radiophone Progressing

The new broadcasting station, to be located on the roof of the Pendroy department store is progressing rapidly. As stated before, this station is to be owned by the Newton Electric company, 154 South Brand, and is to be operated by N. D. Carver, the radio editor of the Glendale Daily Press. Talent will be supplied from various sources, including the Glendale theatre, Mr. Pendroy, Glendale Press, Newton Electric, Glendale Music company, and others. The stations is now under construction and it is hoped that it will be in operation by the end of this week. This station was made immediately possible through the kindness of Mr. Garritson, who is the operator at KYJ, Hamburger's, Express radiophone. As it would be impossible to obtain a commercial license immediately, Mr. Garritson is to approve of the station and then the party operating the station will have to be reliable as that means that Mr. Garritson resumes the responsibility of the proper supervision of the station. The license used will be a license in Mr. Garritson's name and the call letters will be temporarily "6ZL." This license is a special license which permits this station to operate on 375 meters wave length.

The program todate has not been definitely decided on, but if you have a radio set in your home or a receiving set where you can listen in, it would be advisable to do so for you will be assured of a wonderful opening program. The power of the station will be 10 watts and can or will be heard in all of the surrounding communities, fairly loud. Watch the Glendale Daily Press for the opening date and program, also keep your eye on the paper for the developments of the station as it progresses.

New Loud Speaker to Make Debut

Radio enthusiasts are waiting with a great deal of enthusiasm the arrival of a new and serviceable loud speaker, upon the market. Through these columns a fact may be stated that there is about to be introduced, a new and most wonderful loud speaker, to be manufactured by the Western Electric company. According to the tests which have been performed with this loud speaker, the results are wonderful. Three Western Electric power tubes are used (type VT-2), two as amplifiers and one as a push and pull tube which controls the diaphragm of the instrument. The instrument, according to authorities, is absolutely distortionless and speech or music will be received clear, loud and distinct. The Newton Electric company at 154 South Brand boulevard will carry them in stock.

New "B" Batteries Have Aarrived

The new wet "B" batteries which were mentioned in this column about a week ago, have arrived and say, fellows, they are the real stuff. The radio editor inspected them Saturday and following is a complete description. The battery consists of 12 individual cells of 2 volts each, which are connected in series making a total voltage of 24 volts per battery. The plate separators are the Willard threaded rubber insulation which was mentioned before and the plates are 3 times the thickness of the battery plates in the ordinary automobile battery. The plates and insulation are contained each in a glass jar which is filled with electrolyte and then charged upon sale to a customer. But the best thing about them is that they may be recharged and they are good for 6 years. When a plate wears out, it may be substituted for the small amount of 38 cents per set while to have them recharged only costs 50 cents. The cells, as stated before are connected in series and placed in a compact and neat container 6 1-4 by 8 inches and when completely assembled only weighs 10 pounds. The batteries are shipped to the Willard company, bone dry and the solution is put in and the battery charged only upon sale. The total purchase price of this battery is $10.75 which certaintly seems reasonable enough, especially after you have seen it. These batteries may be seen at the Willard Battery agency at 300 South Brand boulevard, and as long as it doesn't cost anything to see them, every radio fan should drop in and look them over as it is sure worth seeing.

Kinema "KOG" Dance Music.

The Kinema Evening Herald Radiophone is now broadcasting dance music every Friday night between 8 and 9 p. m., and it is by a real dance orchestra. Not a phonograph but a real dance orchestra. The music is transmitted via the the Kinema radiophone and is under the auspices of the Los Angeles Evening Herald. To give an idea of exactly the quality of the music, following is part of the program rendered last Friday evening by Abe Lyman's Ambassador orchestra:

"Nothing at All"—Fox trot.
"Canadian Capers"—Fox trot.
"Angel Child"—Fox trot.
"Some Sunny Day"—One-step.
"Tell Me A Story"—Fox trot.
"Twelfth Street Rag"—Fox trot.

From the above program it can readily be seen that it is a real program so any organization which is giving dances on Friday evenings, should install a radio receiving set before the dance begins and have the dancers enjoy at least a few numbers via radio.

Wouldn't It Be Great—If

The new broadcasting station was already running.

When it is running, that we could send from 6 to 9 every night?

NEW DEVICE SENDS NEWS OUT SECRET

Few new uses for Radio are considered as important as the printing Radiotelegraph which, according to its patentees and manufacturers, the Morkrum company of Chicago, is destined soon to supplant the wired distribution of news. Recent tests in Chicago, Washington, D. C., and on the Pacific coast, have proved, it is said, the practicability of the device.

In the operation or application of five little magnets which form part of the apparatus lies the secret of the printing telegraph or the teletype. This quintet of magnets by means of various combinations or adjustments receive and interpret electrical impulses from a radio transmitting station. A camshaft translates these impulses or messages on a machine resembling a typewriter. The magnets may be arranged in 32 ways. In cooperation with the receiving station the broadcaster may use any one of the 32 methods of adjustment. Each of these ways may be established as a code thus enabling secrecy in the transmission or dissemination of news or other form of information.

If the broadcasting and receiving stations are adjusted to print the letter B, an impulse from the former station is received by the 3 impulse on the receiver and the mechanism of the latter then prints that letter. By agreement between the operators of the sending and receiving stations the letter B may be impelled through the ether in many other combinations or codes thus establishing the secrecy necessary to the dispatch of news by competitive agencies.

By changing the speed of the motor which drives the receiving set and by informing the transmitting operator as to the alteration, a new code is formed. An operator bent on learning the message of another would be forced to ascertain the wavelength, motor speed and keyboard code of the latter.

The teletype broadcaster is composed of a CW radio transmitter and a teletype; the receiving set is composed of a standard radio receiver, a radio polarized relay and a receiving teletype. The relay is necessary to change the oscillatory radio waves into straight, steady impulses to enable interpretation.

When the operator of the sending radio teletype depresses a lettered key he releases a rotating cam contractor which transmits a series of signals corresponding with a unit of the code then in use. This part of the radio transmitter corresponds with a telegraph key. It is placed in the grid circuit of a CW transmitting set and interrupts this circuit as would the key in ordinary radio transmission.

At the radio receiving end the signals are received, rectified and amplified as in ordinary radio sets. Thereafter the signals cause the operation of a radio polarized relay. Then the local operations are like those which would occur if the apparatus were controlled by a wired system.

The Morkrum company's experiments with different types of relays show, it is said, that messages may thus be sent satisfactorily for short distances or to places 800 or more miles away, depending only on the power of the broadcasting station.

The printing telegraph or teletype is arranged for the use of tape or page. The former is less expensive; it is adopted to light work. The latter device, which is operated by motor, functions like a typewriter and registers or prints as many as 80 words a minute.

QUESTIONS - ANSWERS

Q.—What size wire should I use in wrapping the primary of a receiving loose coupler and how should it be tapped? — Ray Wolloston, Los Angeles.

A.—The size wire most frequently used on the loose coupler is as follows: No. 26 on primary wrapped on a cardboard tube 4 inches in diameter. Use cotton covered wire and tap every turn for the first 10 turns and then every 10 turns from there on using about 150 turns. Wrap the secondary with number 28 or 30 cotton covered wire and tap every five turns for the first 20 turns and then every 20 turns from there on. After you have completed the wrappings, shellac them with a good grade of shellac before proceeding further.

Q.—What are the fire underwriter's rules regarding a ground wire? —Don Rolster, Eagle Rock.

A.—The underwriter's rules are that the ground wire shall be of number 4 solid copper wire and that it shall be well insulated. However, the amateur's average station for receiving only, need not be larger than No. 12 wire, providing it is protected from lightning by means of a lightning switch, anchor gap, or some other protective means.

Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep

"Rocked in the cradle of the deep,
I lay me down in peace to sleep."
In peace to sleep? Alas, not so,
For science brings the Radio,
And telephoned o'er leagues of foam,
Come messages from "friends" at home.
"Hello there, Bill! Been seasick yet?
We phone you to decide a bet."
"Say, Bill, they've raised your office rent,
And swear they won't come down a cent."
"Hey, Bill, a storm is on the way; It's due to hit your ship today."
"Say Bill, we thought you'd like to know;
Your stocks have struck a record low."
"Say, Bill, we hear the plague's in Rome,
Your wife is worried; says come home."
"Oh, Bill, your house caught fire tonight; Loss as yet unknown. Will write."
"And, Bill, they pinched your Scotch and rye * * *
Don't know * * * Perhaps the firemen did * * * Goodbye."

REV. NORTON TO ATTEND MEETING

In addition to T. N. Barrett and Thomas Hull, N. P. Banks post is sending as delegates to the national encampment of the G. A. R. to be held in Des Moines, Ia., in September, Rev. C. R. All of these men have so many old comrades who are likely to be at the encampment that they will have a wonderful reunion.

"Say, papa," exelaimed little 5-year-old Jennie. "I want to ask you an important question."

'MOTHERS' DAY' IS REV. PRESTON'S TEXT

Pastor of Pacific Avenue Methodist Church Marks the Day

In his Sunday morning sermon, Rev. Harley G. Preston of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church said iu part:

The word "mother" awakens in the human heart memories that are sweet and precious. It is no wonder, therefore, that a special day has been set apart to commemorate the influence of mother.

Into many hearts will come, therefore, today, the second Sunday in May, which has been designated "Mothers' day," sweet memories of the home life and the love, the self-sacrifice, the sympathy, the helpfulness and the inspiration of mother.

Mothers' day is national and international. It is for every creed, class, race and country. Social, fraternal, civil, military and religious organizations, official, professional and business classes are asked to pay homage to mothers on that day.

The name of Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia will long be remembered as the originator of Mothers' day. In 1913, by a resolution of congress, the observance of this day was instituted, the President issuing a proclamation for the first national Mothers' day in May, 1914, and fixing the second Sunday in May for its annual date. Its object was the well-being and honor of the home, its observance demanding some act of kindness, gift or tribute in remembrance of the mother—and father also—to whom grateful attention is due. An international Mothers' Day association was later formed.

"When Jesus therefore saw his mother and the disciple standing by whom He loved, He sayeth unto His mother, Woman, behold thy son. Then sayeth He to the disciple, Behold thy mother. And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home."

This is one of "sidelights" on the Son of Man which prompts every man to a deeper appreciation of his own mother.

We appreciate mother's confidence in us. "Mary pondered," and every other mother does likewise. This confidence encourages when youthful inexperience fails. Hundreds of thousands of boys carried with them to camp and battle small photos of their mothers. The hardships, sacrifice and suffering experienced in the world war brought many a man to a better appreciation of his mother.

A mother's confidence encourages. Benjamin West said, "My mother's kiss of approval made me a painter." This confidence stimulates patience, which enables mothers to trust when others desert.

Mother's touch is toward the higher life. Fathers may teach the handling of the plow or of money, but gentler hands and words have added the nobler touch which have made the Ruskins, Lincolns and Gladstones. This is the touch that turns a life Godward.

Occasionally we find a mother who treats religion as if it were a joke. The heathen mother takes her babe into the idol temple and teaches it to clasp its little hands before its forehead in the attitude of prayer long before it can utter a word. Who ever saw a heathen child that could speak and not pray? Mothers, why is it that so many children grow up in this professedly Christian nation without learning to pray? Mothers of these days who are not doing so should get back to the good old custom of former days, that of teaching the little tots their prayers at mothers' knee. Truly, if a mother be a Christian, hers is the touch that turns a life Godward.

'BEAUTY'S WORTH' T.D.L. ATTRACTION

A great, fat, jolly moon that follows stage directions perfectly but doesn't draw any salary is one of the quaintest of actors in "Beauty's Worth," a Cosmopolitan-Paramount picture, starring Marion Davies. "Beauty's Worth," directed by Robert G. Vignola, is at the T. D. & L. theatre today. The moon's appearance is in the first act of a charade performance given at a fashionable seaside hotel.

The T. D. & L. theatre promises its patrons an attraction next week that can be listed as an event, inasmuch as it occurs so rarely these days. It is a new Charles Chaplin comedy..

"Pay Day" is the title of its latest, described as a galaxy of fun with new gags and novelties to add hilarious mirth to the star's inimitable work. Although it is in two reels, it is said to pack a houseful of laughs from the opening title to the final closeup.

SEASON'S PREMIER JOCKEY AND TWO OF HIS RIVALS AT THE BOWIE RACE TRACK

Here are the three best jockeys of the present racing season. They have been making a fine showing at the spring meeting at the Bowie track in Maryland. This photograph made at Bowie shows (left to right) Lang, one of the youngest but the best rider there; Morris and Thomas. Lang was such a consistent winner early in the meeting that players discarded past performances of the thoroughbreds and bet on Lang's mounts.

The Once Over

Bulletin Urging Neutrality in the Chinese War

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Do not take sides in the Great War of China!

* * *

Remember that suspicion of being pro-Chinaman leaves you open to criticism!

* * *

If you are pro-South Chinaman you will incur the enmity of the supporters of North China. If you are pro-North China you will displease those of our citizens who incline toward South China's side.

* * *

Bear in mind, many American citizens have friends or acquaintances on each side. Some of them have them on both sides. Practically every one is bound by laundry ties, so to speak.

* * *

Do not indulge in Chinese war talk in public places, clubs, saloons, etc. Feeling is running high in all parts of the United States. A careless word anywhere in support of Wu Pei Fu or Chang Tso Lin may start serious rioting.

* * *

Only yesterday a man walked into the dining room of a large hotel in the east and unthinkingly shouted, "Hurrah for Sun Yat Sen! Sun Yat Sen! Sun Yat Sen! Tso Lin ueber alles!"

* * *

Instantly the dining room was in an uproar. M en and women diners jumped to their feet in indignation and called for Department of Justice agents to arrest him. Plates were thrown and a prominent 100 per cent American business man leaped from his hors d'ouvre and felled the man with a chair.

* * *

It later developed that the poor fish was not pro-South China at all. He knew nothing of the war in China and was merely a slightly intoxicated student trying to give a college yell.

* * *

But it shows how careful you've gotta be in time of war, no matter whose war it is.

* * *

Do not spend too much time in Chinese-American circles. Once a week is often enough to go to the laundry. To do so more often is to invite trouble.

* * *

Remember, also, that it is not best to sing Chinese or Chinese-American songs in public places until the feeling subsides.

* * *

Avoid Chinese restaurants. If you must have Chop Suey, ask for it in the name of Liberty Goulash.

* * *

Do not speak Chinese in public. The use of Chinese by speakers at banquets is forbidden until further notice.

* * *

Railroad ticket sellers, train announcers and subway conductors, all of whom have been using Chinese for years, must pick another tongue for the present.

* * *

It should be easy to find another dialect nobody can understand.

* * *

All persons of Chinese blood or laundry marks should prepare to register at once. Do not run; walk to the nearest registration booth.

* * *

All persons are cautioned against signalling at night, sending code messages by any means or otherwise indulging in suspicious actions. Use of the radio should be guided by caution. It is not best to be caught calling for such broadcasting stations as WingX, SamLee, TSO, SI-Lao and WUFEI.

Remember, now is the time for coolness in this great crisis. Keep your shirt on!

'PERJURY' IS ON AT THE GLENDALE

In "Perjury," the William Fox special which is on tonight at the Glendale theatre, William Farnum gives a masterly and gripping characterization of a man tormented by suspicion, torn by jealousy, mad with rage, crushed by despair, and finally redeemed by resignation and human sympathy. The varying emotions were displayed most impressively, the famous screen star fulfilling every requirement of what undoubtedly is the supreme test his dramatic ability has been called upon to meet.

The hero of "Perjury" is seen first as a strong, genial, active and ambitious man, successful in his career and happy in his married life. He is seen last as a man of 65 years, prematurely old, with 20 years of prison life behind him, but with a wonderful gentleness of nature developed by his prolonged separation from the world.

In his jealous rage Farnum is terrific, and in his later moods is wondrously, appealingly pathetic.

There are sharp contrasts between the quiet acceptance of the hardships of prison life by Robert Moore and the bitterness of the struggle of his wife in the outer world to save her children from ruin. The reunion between the two is one of the most appealingly pathetic scenes ever presented on the screen.

"Perjury" was directed by Harry Millarde, who won fame as director of the great Fox picture, "Over the Hill," and the cast includes Sally Crute, Wallace Erskine, John Webb Dillion, Frank Shannon, Frank Joyner, Grace La Vell, Gilbert Rooney and Alice Mann.

ANTELOPE VALLEY ROUTE THROUGH TUJUNGA

Fifty-six Miles Cut Off by Proposed New Road Through Canyon

TUJUNGA, May 15.—Fifty-six miles will be cut off from the present route from Los Angeles to Antelope valley if the plans of the circulators of a petition to the county supervisors to have the road widened into Tujunga canyon and on through to the valley are carried out.

Engineers from the Auto Club of Southern California have been over the route to pass upon its practicability and the project is reported to have the backing of the club.

Beautiful mountain camping grounds would be opened up by the new road, and it is believed that many motorists would take advantage of the shorter route.

Hostesses at Beach Dinner

Miss Frances Morgan and Miss Helene Franke were hostesses at a most charming beach dinner on the beach at Santa Monica on Saturday night. The appointments and service were novel in their every detail and a nautical motif was in evidence throughout. Sea green was used extensively in the color scheme, and place cards were in the form of a ship at full sail, flying a flag carrying the guest's name. Favors of small fish, ducks, alligators and other water inhabitants were concealed in a sand-pile at the center of the table marked "Treasure Island," and original horoscopes were fished for with a bent pin.

Clam chowder served in dishes representing sea anemones was the principal feature of the menu, with fruit salad served on clam shells, sea biscuit in the form of sandwiches, nuts and candy served in small boats, cakes representing ocean billows, and punch poured into pirates' goblets as added delights.

The guests included Miss Leona Fechtner, Miss Stella Wieman, Addison Wells, Robert Walker, Don Wieman, Carroll Parcher and the hostesses, Miss Morgan and Miss Franke.

TWO ARE BETTER THAN ONE SAYS DR. FUNK

Lutheran Pastor Takes Text From First Book of Moses

"Two Better Than One," was the subject for the morning sermon by Dr. Funk Sunday morning at the First Lutheran church. The text was taken from the first book of Moses, at the second chapter and eighteenth verse: "It is not good for the man to be alone."

Some one in a conversation with John Milton called his wife a rose. Milton being blind, replied: "I'm no judge of the flower, but what you say may be so, for I feel the thorns every hour." Many a man in entering upon the marriage state is determining whether he will have two heavens or two hells, one on earth and another in the other land. What you need, O man, is not a butterfly, not a giggling nonentity, not a painted doll, not a gossiping gadabout, not a mixture of artificial things that leave you in doubt as to where the humbug ends and the woman begins, but an earnest soul, one that can laugh and weep, one who can talk to you about treasures above when your fortunes fail. After all, sincerity and devotion are the essential elements of all true womanhood.

Say, sister, it is exceedingly interesting to watch some of these fellows that are looking for a wife. Why, she must be perfection itself, and she ought to be an angel. Well, what right has he to look for perfection in a woman? He is certainly far from being perfect. He'd make a nice companion for an angel, wouldn't he? What is the fact? This: There never was but one perfect man, being a man only, and he fell down in the garden of Eden.

No, young men of bad habits never marry girls of their own sort. They demand wives whose characters are above suspicion. Moreover, we hold that young women are often to blame for not demanding higher ideals of men. They do not offer encouragement for true manhood. Take three young men: one a successful business man, another a well-to-do professional man and the other a dude with nothing to do but put on airs and make himself attractive, and two to one she will encourage the dude. Young women have it in their power to change all this. If you girls don't want a drunken husband or an ill-smelling old corncob pipe lying around the house all the rest of your life, why don't you turn down these fast young fellows? Think of a pure, sweet young girl choosing a foul-mouthed, tobacco-soaked man for a husband. Why do you tolerate such things? Why don't you demand the same things from him that he demands from you?

THE HEN'S PSYCHOLOGY

(The hens are falling behind with their average of egg laying. It is ascribed to the weather—Daily Paper.)

I never laid eggs and I am not a hen,
So I can't speak from her point of view.
But what is the use of your laying eggs when
The hen-owner steals them from you?
A hen lays an egg and she's proud and she's glad,
She cackles without any rest,
And then she goes back to the egg that she had
And she finds it's not there in the nest.

She looks for the egg that she laid in the nest,
She wonders and scratches about,
She was robbed of the egg that she thought she possessed,
For somebody's taken it out.
She thought she was saving a nest-egg perhaps,
As the bankers advise us to do,
And while she was cackling some dishonest chaps
Stole all of the fortune she knew.

So she lays another, and tries it again,
She wants to save up quite a batch,
Like all of the rest of us persons, the hen
Wants something ahead that will hatch.
But soon she discovers it is of no use,
As soon as she gets on her legs
To turn that shrill cackle of happiness loose
Somebody steals all of her eggs.

So it is not the weather, as people may say,
And as has been said oft before.
Suppose you were a hen and you took time to lay
An egg every day if not more.
And suppose you could never get two eggs ahead,
Don't you think like the hen you would shirk?
If you never can save when you work off your head,
What's the use of your keeping at work?

Fashions for Americans

Printed silks and silk crepes promise to have an unusual vogue for the spring and summer season of 1922, and not for a long time, if ever, have so many interesting color effects and patterns been offered. As a rule the rather small designs are the preferred ones, although some silks showing rather splashy effects in scroll and geometrical designs are offered. Perhaps as the season advances these may come into stronger favor.

The sketch indicates the possibilities of printed crepe de Chine in the development of a smart street costume for spring or early summer, and no woman need be told that such a dress woud be ideal for traveling or motor wear. Crepe de Chine as a fabric, if a good quality is selected, gives splendid service, and when the color is practical certainly a very useful frock may be developed. The figured materials are regarded as much more serviceable than the plain ones by many women.

The dress illustrated is in a soft, pretty gray, with touches of navy as well as many other colors in the small flowered design, and plain navy crepe de Chine is used as a trimming, facing panels, sash belt, etc. A dainty collar of white lace and embroidery finishes the frock at the neck, this collar, of course, being detachable.

For real warm weather wear many printed crepes will be made up into unlined dresses of the slip-over type, and the same may be said of foulard. Tub silks are also being used in the development of many smart, simple, warm-weather frocks.

These sheer silks wash so well, usually, that they are active rivals of cotton and linen materials for summer frocks. These last-named fabrics do require a tremendous amount of laundering to keep them in fresh, presentable shape, whereas a soft silk may be worn several times and still look fresh if it is merely pressed and properly hung up after each wearing.

Printed Silks and Crepes Are Favored by Dame Fashion.

Shadow and Sunshine

By JOHN BRECK

High in the hills one loves to watch the spring clouds sweep their shadows across the world as thoughtful moods through a courageous mind. A rough-featured crow crouching gloomingly on the dead top of a blasted pine, though you know quite well if his crop were not bulging full he would be off about his hunting. But the meadowlarks wing and sing as gayly as they did when the dawn first set the dew to sparkling.

It would be an ill thing, after all, if the sun shone with the steady glare of midsummer. Infant plants need their naps often, grow better for them. Or they need the pause to remember they must shape themselves to the shrewd wind, limit their statures, if they are to succeed in the serious business of flowering. It is significant that they never come to much in the full light, but thrive their best and fruit their richest on the shadowed slopes.

It would be an ill thing, too, if our clouds of memory did not help us shape ourselves, remind us that adversity is as swift as a summer storm, or that it leaves with us things as needful to our own fruiting as rain to the dwellers on the hills. If a branch is snapped from us we merely have that much more strength to put into such of our enterprises as remain. Are we stripped bare? If we root deeply we can still put forth new buds of promise. What if they never come to bearing? Who knows but that they may be building for another spring? For me, at least, the very marks of life tell a finer tale of a gnarled wild thorn than of the most deftly clipped in any garden. Clouds are good; what matters it how we take them.

One looms up black, carrying a burst of rain. The crow cranes his neck to peer at it. "Uk-a-awk!" he comments, plainly cursing. Then he flaps dejectedly across the valley and perches again, high up, on another naked limb. His whole attitude proclaims, "Sho, what's the use of hanging about the ground? It doesn't stay warm long enough to tempt a gopher out for an airing." But he has no sympathy of yours.

The trees groan as the wind strikes them; the shrill note of vibrant leaves, almost as keen as the one you make by blowing on a tense grass-blade, is drowned by the drum of drops, and then the full orchestra of the storm sets in. Its opening measures pause—and from a thicket arises the meadowlark's solo. Rich, warm, golden, that voice pours out the vanishing sunlight distilled into song. And you have a touch of the spirit which lightens clouded days, the memory of a bird singing, singing in the rain.

There isn't any unmarketable property in this city. You can sell your holdings if you will advertise adequately.

Why does a man lose interest in a subject as soon as his argument is exhausted.

CRISIS NEARS IN PORTO RICO POLITICS

Fight Between Governor Reily and Unionist Party Is Bitter

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 13.—The fight between Gov. E. Mont. Reily, of Porto Rico and the leaders of the Unionista party, now apparently approaching a crisis, began only a short time after Reily assumed office and delivered his inaugural address on July 30, 1921.

Its beginnings are somewhat difficult to trace. Some declare that it had its inception in a paragraph in Reily's inaugural denouncing the agitation in some quarters for independence of the island. He declared that there is in the United States "no sympathy or possible hope for independence for Porto Rico" and added that "Old Glory has come to stay."

At the time, many regarded this as a slap at the Unionista party, which up to that time had an independence plank in its platform. Thousands of one-star flags—betokening a demand for independence—were then flying throughout Porto Rico.

Others say that this pronouncement in itself did not start the political battle directly, although they say it had a bearing on it, because it indicated antagonism to the Unionistas, which party was and is the overwhelmingly dominant faction in island politics. In any event, it has been noted that, since then, the independence plank has been dropped from the Unionista platform and the party is demanding complete autonomy under the American flag.

Unionista partisans declare that their fight is not on Reily personally, but on his politics. They say that their party elected four-fifths of the membership of the lower house of the insular legislature and a still greater percentage of the senate membership. These representatives were elected overwhelmingly by the people, they assert, showing in no uncertain way that the people of Porto Rico want that party to govern.

Friends of Governor Reily say he has taken a strong stand against independence and secession and that this stand is the root of the political warfare. If Reily will "surrender," as they characterize it, he can immediately become the most popular and carefee man in the island.

But they add that "surrender" would involve dismissal of non-Unionista or "continental" cabinet officers and the complete turning over of the government of the island to the Unionistas, with himself as a mere figurehead. This, they say, he cannot do.

Felix Cordova Davila, Porto Rico's resident commissioner in Washington, has been one of the leading figures in the fight to oust Reily. He laid before congress a series of charges against the governor and has pushed them unrelentingly. Simultaneously, the insular grand jury investigated the governor's expense warrants. It did not indict the governor, but it endeavored to return a report strongly criticising him and his administration.

Judge Foote, the presiding judge, refused to receive the report and declared the grand jury adjourned.

Several efforts have been made to compose the differences. The most notable occurred late in March when Reily and Don Antonio Barcelo held a secret 8-hour conference at Salinas. Rumors of a compromise and the "surrender of Reily" were rife at the time, but nothing tangible came of the meeting.

The situation since then has mostly marked time, leaders of both sides awaiting the final decision of Presidtnt Harding and Secretary of War Weeks as to the federal government's policy in the controversy.

ORIGIN OF DINNER TO SPEAKER IS TOLD PUBLIC

Social Event Given to Help Joe Cannon Out of Difficulty

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"The dinner to the speaker," annually one of the brightest of events at the White House, was started by President Roosevelt, in his first term, to help Uncle Joe Cannon out of a social tangle.

Roosevelt, shortly after his inauguration, invited Cannon, who was speaker of the house (and at that time the speaker was second only to the president) to attend a cabinet dinner at the White House.

Cannon accepted, but later found out that his daughter, Miss Helen, had issued invitations for a dinner at the Cannon home on the same night as the White House affair.

"But if we're invited to the White House, that's a command and we'll have to cancel our own affair," said Miss Cannon.

"I don't know about that," said Uncle Joe. "Wait until I see the president."

When Cannon told the president of the difficulty, Roosevelt promptly told him to go ahead with his own party and said he'd invite him to the next White House dinner.

But the next dinner Roosevelt gave was the diplomatic dinner and complications arose. Roosevelt sent for Cannon and said:

"Look here, I can't have you to this dinner, for John Hay tells me that the dean of the diplomatic corps must sit at my right and the secretary of state at my left. That would leave no proper place for the speaker." So Cannon didn't get in on that dinner.

The next dinner was the judicial dinner and the same situation arose. The attorney-general had to be placed on one side of the president and the chief justice on the other side.

Roosevelt and Cannon met to try to solve the problem.

"I'll tell you," said Cannon, "there's only one thing to do, and that's to give a dinner to the speaker."

"Great idea," said Roosevelt, and shortly afterwards came the first "dinner to the speaker."

Back in 1906, when Theodore Roosevelt was president and Uncle Joe Cannon was speaker, the two were supposed to be bitter enemies, as the results of disagreements over legislative affairs. Newspapers daily carried long stories registering the latest news in the Roosevelt-Cannon controversy.

The truth is, the president and Cannon were on the best of personal terms and were spending three or four nights each week together at the White House.

It was in 1904 that Cannon apparently openly slighted Roosevelt by not inviting him to a banquet Cannon was giving for the Gridiron club of Washington, newspapermen at whose parties the speaker had many times been an honored guest. Here is the real story of that:

Cannon had sent formal invitations to the vice-president, all the cabinet members, the chief and associated justices and some 200 more government officials, but left the president out in the cold.

A few days after the invitations had gone out, President Roosevelt called Cannon on the phone and said:

"Look here. What's the idea of having a dinner and not inviting me?"

"Well," replied Cannon, "I couldn't invite you. I was told that the president cannot be invited to meet anyone. Everybody must be invited to meet him, so I left you out."

"I'll fix you," said the president. "I invite myself and accept the invitation right now."
